MOON WILL ECLIPSE THE SUN SATURDAY

DEEPEST DENSITY OF SHADOW OF TWO MINUTES' DURATION

Next Phenomenon in North America Will Not Occur Until October 26, 2144—Will Cross United States in 47 Minutes, a Most Terrific Speed.

You had better get out your smoked glasses.

For Circleville will see a partial eclipse of the sun on January 24.

But this city will not be so fortunate as others lying a few hundred miles to the north.

The eclipse will be about 94 per cent complete.

In a broad band stretching like an arc about 100 miles wide from northern Minnesota to lower New England the eclipse will be total.

In Circleville the eclipse will begin at 7:53 a. m., shortly after sunrise.

At 8:59 it will reach its greatest magnitude. From then on it will gradually decline until 10:13 when it will end.

An eclipse occurs whenever the moon, in its revolution about the earth happens to come between the sun and the earth.

Then the moon's shadow falls on the earth, and within the belt crossed by it, there is a total eclipse. On either side of this of this path a partial eclipse may be seen.

The earth revolves about the sun and the moon in turn about the earth. Necessarily the moon will periodically pass between us and the sun. This happens every time we have the new moon phase. But we do not have an eclipse nearly so often, because in order to have an eclipse the three bodies must live very nearly in a straight line, whereas at most new moons the moon is either too far above or below the line actually to obscure the whole or even a part of the sun's disk.

The reason for this is that the orbit of the moon about the earth does not lie in the same plane as the orbit of the earth about the sun. The relative sizes and distances of the moon and sun are such that the tip only of the moon's shadow reaches the earth and for this reason the part of totality, which is the path of this shadow, is always very narrow, averaging less than a hundred miles in width. Furthermore, because of the speed of the orbital movement of the moon the maximum duration for totality can be only seven minutes, and, in the present case, is usually considerably less.

At Niagara Falls, New York, just what will be the scenic effect of the solar eclipse on the tumbling waters of Niagara and the great ice mounds is a mystery, the unveiling of which is looked forward to with great expectation.

Niagara is located in the very center of the path of the eclipse and many astronomers have chosen to locate their instruments there for observation and photographic purposes.

ADVOCATES ABOLITION OF GRAND JURY.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 22—Abolition of the grand jury system of investigating crime was recommended by Chief Justice C. T. Marshall today in his report as chairman of the judicial council before the Ohio State Bar association in session.

"Abolition of the grand jury system would eliminate long delays in court action, justice would be speeded up and congestion relieved," Marshall said. The recommendation will be laid before the legislature.

Niagara is draped in winter garb—a fairy land of crystal trees and shrubbery and eternal rush of great water over the precipice.

Authorities predict that the rays of the sun reflected in the mist and reflected by the ice under such extraordinary conditions, will blend their many colors into the scenery, causing a weird and fascinating scene.

Ninety trained observers of light and shadow will literally attempt to catch the shadow of the moon on the house tops of New York during the eclipse. The purpose is to determine the exact location of the southern border of the shadow from which much scientific data is calculated.

QUEEN ESTHER CIRCLE.

"The Queen Esther Circle" met Tuesday evening, January 20, at 7 o'clock at the home of Miss Dorothy Johnson, 120 North Pickaway street, with their leader, Mrs. E. A. Allen.

Twenty-five members including ten new ones and two visitors were present. A very interesting program was given as follows: Reading of the twenty-third psalm, scripture lesson from the Bible. Piano solo by Miss Ambrey Wickenseimer. A letter read from Cedar town, Georgia, acknowledging the receipt of the dolls sent at Christmas time by this society. A delightful talk on "Americanism via Pasture" by Mrs. E. A. Allen.

Dues were collected amounting to eight dollars and fifty cents.

Miss Marguerite Dearth was appointed corresponding secretary for the ensuing year. After the business session was over the evening was pleasantly spent in music and conversation, during which period light refreshments were served by the hostess, Miss Dorothy Johnson.

This circle is growing rapidly under the supervision of their new leader, much interest being manifested by all members.

Huge Power Project Building in Kentucky

This power project, on the Dix river, now under construction 12 miles from Burgin, Ky., is said to be the largest rock-fill dam in the world. When completed it will enable the hydroelectric plant to be built in connection with it to develop 36,000 horse power, 13,000 more than that furnished by the Roosevelt dam in Arizona. The current is to be transmitted over 205 miles of lines to various parts of Kentucky.

BASKETBALL FANS WITNESS A GOOD GAME

C. A. C. Team Defeated the Arlington Collegians by Score of 34 to 19.

Recovering from a bad start that looked as tho they were due to lose the game the club boys by clever floor work and wonderful basket shooting pulled the game out of the fire.

While the final score is somewhat one sided the game was fast and furious, going nine minutes before a point was scored when the Collegians drew first blood by registering a field goal and managed to score six points before the club got started. The score at the half being 13 to 11 in the Collegians favor.

In the second frame the club boys came back strong and played the visitors off their feet scoring 23 points against the visitors six points. Gattrel being the principal point getter for the club accounting for 17 points with eight field goals and one ball throw, Hanes showing up best for the visitors with eight points.

Referee Steele again handled the game in a masterful manner.

Next Thursday the club's opponents will be The St. Mary's Athletic association. This team has won all of its last twenty-two starts and the club is expecting to break their winning streak. The score:—

OUSTER SUIT AGAINST THE BLIND MAYOR.

The anticipated suit to oust Senator Roy Gillen as mayor of Wellston has been filed in the supreme court by former Attorney General Joseph McGhee for William E. Gettles, president of Wellston city council. McGhee, contending the senator vacated the office of mayor when he qualified for the state position, said the suit will decide definitely whether the offices of mayor and state senator are compatible and may be held at the same time in view of the constitutional inhibition against persons holding two lucrative offices at the same time.

EXTENSIONS NOT GRANTED FOR RETURNS

Income Taxpayers Must File Reports by March 15 as Further Time is Denied.

No extension of time for the filing of income tax returns will be made by local collectors, according to an arrangement made Thursday, by officials of the internal revenue bureau.

The office has been swamped with requests for an extension of time beyond March 15, but officials point out that under the income tax act of 1924 this authority to grant an extension, has been abrogated.

The requests for an extension beyond the time set are being made by people in this district who are wintering in the south. Officials declare that in 1923 more than 500 extensions were granted.

The only way an extension may be obtained, they point out, is by making this request of the commissioner of internal revenue at Washington, D. C. Officials advise those who are contemplating asking an extension, for who are depending upon an extension, to file before March 15, or the internal revenue office of this district will be forced to levy the specified penalty for making a late return.

Field deputy collectors of the internal revenue office at Columbus, Thursday and Friday will attend an income tax school, in compliance with the orders of Newton M. Miller, local internal revenue collector, in anticipation of the rush of returns between now and March 15, and to become more thoroughly acquainted with the provisions of the new 1924 income tax act.

Threat Was Too Much
Public Occurrences, which appeared in Boston, Mass., September 25, 1890, was the first newspaper in America. It started out well by promising to print all the news without fear or favor, and to promote the interests of Boston. It also promised that in its next issue it would publish the names of all the liars in Boston. The authorities, taking notice of the threat, forbade publication, so Public Occurrences gave up in disgust and died.

DEAD SEA TALK TO AGRICULTURE?

Waters Can Supply Enormous Quantities of Potash for Fertilizer.

Washington.—Enormous supplies of potash can be easily extracted from the waters of the Dead sea, according to recent assertions.

"The Dead sea is the sink-hole of the world," says a bulletin from the Washington headquarters of the National Geographic society. "In no other continent is there such a deep depression in the earth's crust; nor will one find greater desolation or more uncomfortable conditions for man and most other living things even in the hearts of the greatest deserts."

"The Hebrew scriptures have thrown an atmosphere of tragedy about this country. There, the chronicle states, were situated the wicked cities of Sodom and Gomorrah, destroyed by the wrath of Jehovah; and there the modern reader sees the blasted region, seared by unbearable heat, with its bitter death-dealing waters, to prove the story to his satisfaction."

"According to the Biblical narrative the Jordan valley, and the plain near its mouth on the shores of the Dead sea where the destroyed cities lay, shared the early good fortune of the Promised Land itself and 'flowed with milk and honey.' But an end was put to this pleasant condition by the rain of brimstone and fire."

Geology Indicates Vast Age.

"The story of the region deciphered from its rocks by geologists begins much earlier than the days of the patriarchs whose actions are recorded in the Bible. This record seems to indicate that Palestine and the whole western end of Arabia rose from the sea a million or more years ago in what geologists term the Tertiary era. Shortly after the rise, it seems, a great slice of the land parallel to the coast of the Mediterranean sank to great depth, forming the huge rift valley, 'the Ghor,' now occupied by the Jordan river and the Dead sea."

"It is not clear whether there was a connecting channel between the Mediterranean and the great valley; but a well-defined ancient beach indicates that in those remote times the great depression held a sea or lake at about the same level as that of the Mediterranean. The Jordan did not then exist; its entire valley as well as the Sea of Galilee was swallowed up in the parent of the Dead sea, which was some 200 miles long and 10 to 15 miles wide."

"It is believed that the climate of Palestine in remote times was moist and that the great inland lake was for a while kept at its highest point. When drier conditions set in the lake began to shrink, eventually retreating into the present position of the Dead sea and exposing the valley now occupied by the Jordan. This is practically the only large river in the world which flows in a valley ready-made for it almost from source to mouth."

"The Dead sea depression having no outlet, all the salts contained in the large original inland sea were retained when evaporation reduced the volume of the body of water to its present dimensions. In addition, for hundreds of thousands of years the Jordan and the other streams and torrents that flow from the desert hills into the basin have been carrying in additional salts until now the waters of the Dead sea constitute one of the most highly concentrated natural brines in existence. It is estimated that on the average some six million tons of water flow into the Dead sea daily, and since the level of the sea changes but little, an equal amount is pumped out daily by evaporation."

"Whereas ocean water contains about one-twentieth of its weight in dissolved solids, the solids in solution in Dead sea water make up one-fourth its weight. Potassium chloride makes up about one-fifteenth of the total solids but common salt (sodium chloride) is fully five times as plentiful. The isolation of the potassium salts, therefore, might be somewhat difficult on a commercial scale."

Cause of Destruction.

"The present Dead sea is 47 miles long and about ten miles wide. Its surface lies approximately 1,500 feet lower than sea level and at its deepest point its bottom lies another 1,300 feet down. This great rift in the earth's crust, therefore, lies 2,800 feet below sea level and is the deepest hole in the land anywhere in the world. Because of the intense heat and dryness and the presence everywhere of salt the land immediately about the Dead sea is a region of desolation. On some of the flats a few straggling, thorny desert plants grow and in some sheltered wadies where the springs are fresh, small groups of palms struggle for existence. Most of the area, however, is a dry, rocky waste encrusted with salt, or nearer the sea, with slimy salt mud flats."

"It is quite possible that even 6,000 or 7,000 years ago, in the era to which the Biblical chronicles reach, the then relatively moist climate of Palestine made the plain near the mouth of the Jordan a rich land such as that which Lot found. It is also quite possible that the 'Cities of the Plain'—Sodom, Gomorrah and their fellows—perished in a cataclysm brought about by a modern secondary adjustment in this region of tremors from earlier geologic disturbance."

Producing Good
Crop of Clover

One of Big Causes of Failure
Is That Soils Have Become Acid or Sour.

A great many farmers are having more and more difficulty in producing a good clover crop. One of the main troubles is that the soils have been cropped until they are acid or sour. Since bacteria life does not thrive in soils that are acid, the clovers will not grow well.

Practically all soils tend to become more or less sour or acid. The decay of vegetable or organic matter produces acid. So soils rich in humus are very apt to be acid. Plant roots, in the process of growth, throw off acids that remain in the soil. Heavy, nonporous soils that do not allow the entrance of fresh air are generally acid in nature. So, practically all soils have acid in them. However, sometimes the natural lime in the soil is sufficient to neutralize the effect of the acid.

Detecting Sour Soils.

Acid, or sour soils can be detected in several ways. If clover and other legumes fail to thrive or grow on them it is a pretty fair sign of an acid soil. If such weeds as sheep-sorrel, horse-tail rush, corn spurry and wood horsetail thrive upon the land it is again a pretty certain sign of acid or sour soils.

However these two signs are not definite enough. What we want is a test based on chemical knowledge of the reaction of the soil.

One of the most common of these is the litmus paper test. It is inexpensive and the litmus paper can be obtained at most any drug store. Be sure to get blue litmus paper.

Testing Surface Soils.

For testing the surface soil, thrust a spade to the bottom of the top soil (that which is generally turned up by the plow). Throw out a spade full or two of dirt, leaving a smooth wall. Shave off about half an inch of soil and throw in a half bushel, or similar container. Take several samples from various parts of the field and mix them. Take about a pint of the mixed dirt and sift fine. This will give a very good sample for the whole field. For sub-soil simply remove the surface soil and get your samples as before. Place a quantity of soil in contact with a small piece of the blue litmus paper. If it turns red it is a sign of an acid soil. Thousands of dollars are being lost through acid soils. Every farmer should take a little time and test his soil. Thousands of dollars can be saved by a little time and money spent in testing your soil.

Lime is the certain remedy for acid soils. For a complete discussion of the value of lime consult Bulletin No. 46, obtained from Purdue University, Agricultural Department, Lafayette, Ind.

Little Difference in Fall and Spring Pigs

The swine husbandry division of the University farm, St. Paul, through carefully conducted experiments, have found that it takes a greater variety of feeds to grow fall pigs successfully than is necessary to grow spring pigs; their explanation being that green crops are not available for fall pigs. However, fall pigs make as rapid gains when well housed and handled as do spring pigs. In the experiments it was found that the amount of feed required to produce gains was practically the same for pigs farrowed at the two different seasons. Cheaper gains were made by fall pigs because feed costs were lower in the winter than summer. Fall pigs sell at a higher price than do spring pigs, not on the quality of the pigs, however, but from the fact that they usually "hit" a more favorable market. The overhead feed cost in maintaining brood sows is greatly reduced by having them raise two litters per year.

Can Add Several Years
to Life of Peach Trees

Except that the soil should not be too rich in nitrogen, the peach tree is not very particular regarding the variety of soil in which it is to stand. While the usual preference is for a sandy loam, some very good yielding orchards stand in heavy clay, as well as in the intermediate grades. Plenty of potash and lime are favorable to the peach and are really essential to long life of the tree. Peach trees seventy years old and still bearing fine crops of large peaches, are reported as standing on a limestone hill. While such an age is, of course, quite exceptional, one may have bearing peach trees of considerably greater age than the 12 or 15 years that is usually thought to be about the limit of their useful lives. A careful and intelligent selection of the site for the trees, together with the right kind of care in their cultivation, fertilization and pruning is quite likely to add several years to their lives over that which is common to neglected trees.

Soy Acreage Increased

The acreage of soy beans grown for the grain in the northern states where the crop is rapidly gaining in favor, increased about 25 per cent in 1924. The total United States acreage grown for the beans, rather than for forage in 1924, is estimated at 534,000 acres compared with 452,000 acres in 1923. Ohio shows an increase of 18 per cent. The October 1 average condition of the crop for the United States was 79 per cent of normal.

Pretty, Isn't It?

There the emperor knelt once a year.

KEEPING WELL

CARING FOR THE AGED

DR. FREDERICK R. GREEN
Editor of "HEALTH"

IT WAS long ago recognized that babies need special care. The infant's body is not like the adult body. It requires food and care, both in health and sickness, which are suited to it. So we have, in the medical profession, a group of men who have given special attention to the needs of child life. We have books and pamphlets and articles, telling mothers and nurses how to care for the very young.

At the other extreme of human life are the very old. Their bodies and their ills, like those of the very young, need special care and treatment. This fact has only recently been recognized.

In a recent article in the Virginia Medical Monthly, Dr. Thomas H. Boggs of Baltimore considers some of the special problems of old age. With the increasing length of life, the subject is of greater importance than ever before. In many households today there are aged persons who need special care.

The aged person, like the infant, is frail. Physically and mentally, he lacks the elasticity and quick rebound of the vigorous person of middle life. Old persons are apt to be talkative, fretful, strongly attached to their old views, unable to fix the mind on new subjects. The mind like the body has gotten into ruts through its long years of use. These habits of living, if suddenly broken, may cause serious results. Slight injuries or operations, sudden changes in surroundings, occupation or living conditions have a much more marked effect on the old than on the middle aged.

One of the most important physical difficulties of old age is constipation, due to loss of teeth and, consequently, reduced chewing ability, reduced activity of digestion, poor selection of food and lack of exercise. Properly fitted false teeth, the use of foods containing fiber, such as bran, spinach, lettuce, celery and cabbage, drinking plenty of water and the administration of mild, non-irritating laxatives, such as mineral oil, will be of value in such cases.

Many old persons from habit eat too much. A simple diet of well-cooked foods is best, avoiding fats, fried foods and too much starch.

Heavy exercise is, of course, out of the question. For the old, so long as they are physically able, walking is the best--outdoors in good weather, or the porch or indoors on stormy days.

In spite of frequent newspaper reports, no gland treatment, either by transplantation or serum, is of any value. The human machine in old age is worn and fragile. It cannot be made young again. Since it cannot change, living conditions must be adapted to it.

Fall Freshening Is Meeting With Favor

Many Excellent Reasons Are Given for Practice.

Fall freshening is one of the methods that many scientific men and others have been for years endeavoring to persuade dairymen to practice. There are so many excellent reasons for such advice.

Cows that freshen in early autumn produce more for the year and considerably more in the winter, than cows freshening in the spring. The winter is the time of year when most cows should be in milk and heavily in milk because, as a rule, the price is consistently higher during the winter and early spring months and also the farmer who practices diversified farming has more leisure time away from his general farming operations at that season of the year.

Professor Misner of Cornell, in working on this problem, compiled some valuable information on over 2,000 cows, from which he found that in herds that had less than 25 per cent of the cows freshen in the fall, the average yield per cow per year was 4,630 pounds and the cost of producing 100 pounds of milk was $2.80. In herds where over 50 per cent of the cows freshen in the fall the yield was 6,025 pounds and the cost $2.35 per hundred (1921 figures for New York state). While the difference cannot all be accredited to fall freshening yet it undoubtedly was an important factor, and hence has a very definite bearing on the cost of producing milk.

Between December 1, and March 1, is the ideal time to get the cows with calf, thus insuring fall freshening with consequent greater profits.—H. R. Lascelles, Fieldman, Colorado State Dairy Commissioner.

Late Winter and Early Spring to Prune Trees

It is usually considered preferable to prune all fruit trees in the late winter or early spring, but this point has probably been over-emphasized. In sections where there are mild winters, winter-killing should not result and fall pruning should therefore not be harmful.

Provided pruning has been carefully done during the first years of a tree's life, there would not be much heavy cutting necessary after this time. Furthermore, what there is will be largely cutting out of interfering branches with the purpose of thinning out the growth and letting in light to the remaining wood. Cutting of this kind can usually be done in the fall without fear of injury.

One thing may actually be in favor of fall pruning, provided it is done before the leaves fall. This point is that it enables the pruner to see more vividly the results he is obtaining, particularly in regard to thinning out the branches where the growth is too thick and is producing too much shade. On the other hand, it is always a good plan, even with spring pruning, to prune a few sample trees while the leaves are yet on, to serve as a pattern in the dormant season (spring).

In general, however, it is safer to do most of the pruning in the spring or any time during late winter, after the coldest weather is past. This applies to heavy cutting particularly and to the pruning of old bearing trees. A small amount of cutting, thinning out growth, removal of suckers, etc., may be done any time during the year with almost equal success.

Value of Pumpkins in the Fattening of Pigs

Results from three experiment stations show that 376 pounds of pumpkins fed with 273 pounds of grain, gave 100 pounds of gain with fattening pigs. Authorities state that 2½ tons of pumpkins are equal to one ton of corn silage. About the only way of getting at the value of corn silage is by figuring its actual cost and this varies a great deal. Data kept in Illinois indicated that a ton of silage costs about $3.30. With concentrates at $20 per ton and legume hay at $14 per ton, good silage is worth about $6.50 per ton. Therefore, if it takes 2½ tons of pumpkins to equal one ton of corn silage and it is worth $6.50, pumpkins would be worth less than half that amount. However, we believe they would be worth more than that for feeding hogs but we doubt if they are worth $6 per ton. The seeds of pumpkins contain much nutriment and they should not be removed when feeding.

FARM FACTS

It takes about six pounds of seed corn to plant an acre. This means about sixteen ears for each acre to be planted.

The agricultural experiment stations are lamps upon the farmer's pathway to intelligent and profitable farming.

With more horse power and machine power, we could grow with our present man power all the cash crops and then feed ourselves and our live stock from additional acreage.

Sheep equalize the labor on the farm, requiring less in the summer when labor is scarce and high-priced and most in the winter when it is usually plentiful and cheap. Sheep-raising requires less labor than grain farming.

CONSCIENCE STRICKEN MAN ENDS HIS LIFE.

Dayton, O., Jan. 23.—His conscience drove Harvey Watts, negro, to confess his part in the disposal of the body of another negro who he said was murdered by George Brown, also colored, who is doing time in the penitentiary on a liquor charge. The dead man is Francis Dammons, whose body was found in a gravel pit Thanksgiving day, 1923. Watts said Brown killed Dammons the Saturday night before. Watt said that he helped Brown carry the body to the gravel pit and that Mrs. Brown led the way with a lighted lantern.

Authorities here are holding Watts and will ask that Brown be returned to Dayton and formally arraigned on the charge of murder.

Potash-Producing Weed.
It is believed that the ash of bracken contains 40 to 50 per cent of soluble potash. In parts of Australia, where the weed grows abundantly, it has been found that a yield of 400 pounds of potash can be obtained per acre. The potassium occurs chiefly as sulphate and chloride.

Find the Joy in Things.
Do not let the things that were made for your service crush out your life with their weight. Life is full of sunshine, and beauty, and love; birds sing and flowers bloom for you as well as for others. Do not shut your eyes to the beauties of life. But there is no joy in anything unless we open the door of our hearts and let in the sunshine and dispel the gloom that we have created for ourselves.—Exchange.

Sally's Sunset

By J. R. McCARTHY

(© by Western Newspaper Union.)

YOU couldn't exactly have called Sally Rinker an adventurous girl, but at least she was venturesome enough to leave a practical pair of parents in an Ohio city and go to Los Angeles to teach school.

One memorable evening Sally, alighting at the Utah avenue station, found sea and sky and mountain a flaming riot of color.

Sally, lips ajar, white teeth gleaming, watched breathlessly. The colors faded, died. Only then did Sally notice that by her side stood Joseph Weston, one of her three persistent admirers.

But Joseph Weston, whose small income had made him a loafer, had hardly stepped across Ocean avenue when Sally, rounding a palm tree, found herself looking down upon Professor Milton Strop, the English teacher. Professor Strop was famous in professional circles for two things. The first was his seemingly hopeless devotion to Sally Rinker, and the second his bent for writing verse. Just now he was humped over a pad.

"What's up professor? Or rather, what's down?"

The poet jumped and bowed. "Not much down yet, Miss Sally. Just three lines. I'm trying to make a song of 'that sunset.'"

"Bully for you," cried Sally. "I've just told Joseph Weston I'd do most anything for the man who put that glory into a song. That goes with you, too."

"Fine, Miss Sally. Wonderful! I must make my effort perfect. Will you give me two months?"

"Two months it is," said Sally. "It was a day or two later that Pete Bell, the realtor, rushed up to Sally as she stepped from that trolley."

"I hear you are going to marry the man who puts last Monday's sunset into the most fitting song. Is that right?"

"Well, Pete," she admitted. "I didn't say exactly that. I said I'd do anything, though, and I suppose that gave your friends Joseph Weston and Professor Strop a chance to make some rash statement about marriage. But you, poor Pete, couldn't make a song with six rhyming dictionaries and a book of rules."

"Nevertheless, Sally, count me in the contest. Give me three months."

"Three months? It'll take you three years, Pete, and then I have my doubts. But three months you shall have."

A week before his allotted time was up, Joseph Weston met Sally in Palisades park.

Joseph sought out a bench overlooking the Pacific. "Here we are, Sally. It's only four lines, but it's a masterpiece." With great ceremony he thrust an elaborately scrolled sheepskin into her hands and she read Joseph Weston's lines with some trepidation.

"The sun went down in glory in the sea,
All golden were the mountains and the skies;
But what's a sunset miracle to me,
Unless I see it in my Sally's eyes?"

Sally couldn't help laughing. "You lazy rogue," she scolded him, "you haven't written about the sunset at all."

On the last day of his two months' grace, Professor Strop bowed to Sally as she entered the park.

"You look awfully serious, Professor. You must have written an epic."

"It isn't too long," answered Professor Strop dolefully. "That's just the trouble."

Sally was touched, though she had to laugh. "All right, three lines are enough, if they're the right ones. Read them!"

Sonorously, the professor read:

How royally, his daily labor done,
Unto his gilded palace rides the sun.
His gates are clouds, with golden pillars wide—

"And that, Miss Sally, is as far as I could get."

Sally let him off gently. "It's a good start," she said. "And besides, you haven't much competition so far."

But three weeks later, when the prosy but business-like Pete Bell met her at the station and thrust a bundle of papers into her hands, Sally received the shock of her life.

"Why," said Pete, "that's free verse."

"You explain it to me," she said.

"All right, hop in," Pete held open the door of his car. "I'll explain it as we go."

"I'm ready," said Sally, almost tearfully. "Explain that free verse of yours. It looks more like arithmetic than poetry to me."

"Quite right, Sally. And here you are: Here's what those figures and diagrams mean. Just take a look from the roadway, and then step onto the porch."

Sally looked at the prettiest little bungalow she had ever seen. Then she stepped upon the porch. Pete waved a hand toward the ocean.

"There's your music down there," he said, "and this is your song, here. Like 'em?"

But what Sally had to tell him didn't require words.

Napoleon's Milan Decree
On December 27, 1807, Napoleon issued his famous Milan decree, in which he declared a blockade of all English dominions, and forbade the rest of the world to trade with Great Britain or use her goods.

AMUSEMENTS

The latest of cinema thrillers came to town last night and those who went to the Met theater yesterday, enjoyed an hour of real entertainment. "Open All Night" is the name of this new Paramount production which Paul Bern produced from the screen play by Willis Goldbeck. Incidentally, this is Mr. Bern's debut in the directorial field which prompts us to say that if it's a sample of what he can do more power to him.

As far as picture plays go, "Open All Night" is something new. Here we have subtlety and charm intermingled with physical action and punch, fine humor and a highly entertaining story. And to top it all a flawless cast. The outstanding feature of the film is the six day bike race around which the plot revolves, and which in itself is worth several times the price of admission.

The story deals with a young Parisian society matron who is bored to tears because of her husband's tame love-making. She craves caveman tactics and one night decided to go in search of her ideal man. She finally finds him at the Winter Circus where the International Bicycle race is in progress, in the person of Petit Mathieu, a champion bicycle rider. Events take an unexpected turn when friend husband discovers her and starts acting as a caveman himself. And from that point on the film is an alternating succession of giggles, chuckles and laughs.

There are thrills by the score for every member of the audience in the great bicycle race scenes, filmed in an arena which is an exact duplicate of the great track in the Winter Circus, Paris.

Every member of the superlative cast gives a great performance. Viola Dana, Adolphe Menjou, Jetta Goudal, Maurice ("Lefty") Flynn, Raymond Griffith and Gale Henry have the leading roles. By all means see this picture.

Shocks Caused by Moods.
Shocks cause moods. Every shock calls up all the memories caused by former shocks of the same nature and excites the passion it is connected with into activity. Moods can result only from a shock on some sense. A stronger mood will always supplant a weaker one. Sometimes a shock of high intensity, as anger, will fall while a mood of lower intensity, but greater persistence, such as love, is in progress. The anger mood locks out the love mood, and only anger memories and imaginations rule the mind. At length these grow weak and disappear and the love mood, with its memories and imagination, return to thought.—Exchange.

Shakespeare Stands Alone.
Admitting to the fullest that the present age cannot forestall the judgment of posterity, it seems unlikely that a copy of the work of any contemporary dramatist will ever sell for $28,000. Such a thing happened recently in the case of four Shakespeare folios; but Shakespeare was Shakespeare, even when his contemporaries took him as a matter of course, and since then the judgment of time has made him a standard by which the enduring genius of later playwrights can be reasonably estimated.

"Janice Meredith" — Metro-Goldwyn Adams, Detroit

Evening Times—Is a mammoth production, sumptuous, fervent, patriotic, in every respect a thrilling masterpiece of the screen. Its suspense is so real that Adams audience actually applaud during its unreeling and that in itself is a rare tribute.

Free Press—Thrill after thrill follow each other as memorable incidents in the making of American history are revealed.

News—Marion Davies is featured in the love story which is simple but ample for holding down the heavier incidents.

The Musk Rat.

The musk rat, as its name would indicate, is a species of rat. It is found nowhere but in America. Its body is shaped like that of the ordinary rat, but instead of the short, close hair of the land species, it is covered by a thick reddish-brown fur, and because it lives much in the water it has webbed toes. Although very awkward on land, it is lively and playful in water, and is a great swimmer and diver.

Telephone Tattle.

Thieves and beggars have a "cant" language of their own. When a burglar uses the phrase, "struck by lightning," he means that he was arrested by the police whilst engaged on his little job, through information conveyed through the telephone.

FRAUD IN STOCKS COSTS 600 MILLION

Industrial Middle West Is Biggest Loser.

New York.—The industrial Middle West, Michigan, Ohio, and Indiana, is probably the heaviest loser in the country by the operations of the fraudulent stock promoter, according to a nation-wide survey now being undertaken by the national vigilance committee of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World.

The survey is based upon the answers to a questionnaire sent out to forty better-business bureaus and nearly three hundred chambers of commerce in every state in the country. It revealed that the per capita stock loss throughout the country is about $8, and that the group of individuals who pay the highest toll are mine and factory workers, chiefly of foreign birth.

Next to Michigan, Ohio and Indiana, the industrial East—Pennsylvania, New York, Massachusetts, and, to a less extent, New Jersey—is the heaviest loser in the country. The old South and the agricultural Middle West of Iowa, the Dakotas, Kansas and Nebraska are relatively immune from fraudulent stock promotion.

The highest per capita loss of any town or group of towns, $40, was reported by seven adjoining towns in Pennsylvania. The combined population of all of these towns is about 10,000. Two cities of 40,000 population, one in Michigan and one in Ohio, each reported a loss of $1,000,000, or $25 per capita.

It is a significant fact, however, Lou E. Holland, president of the Associated Advertising Clubs of the World, said in commenting on the survey and its objective of "Investigate Before You Invest," that although 90 per cent of the organizations reported losses in their communities during the last year through fraudulent or highly speculative investments, 75 per cent of this number believed that their educational and vigilance methods had proved effective in reducing them.

Although the aggregate stock losses throughout the country are now about $600,000,000 a year, Mr. Holland estimates that in the next two or three years, with adequate public co-operation in the "Before You Invest—Investigate" movement, this amount will have been cut in half, and $300,000,000 will be turned back into the pockets of the American public.

Teaches Latin With Cross-Word Puzzles

And the reason is easily found. For the daily problem, he places a cross-word puzzle on the blackboard, and the words to be supplied have to be looked for in books on Latin grammar, history, mythology, etc.

"Elevator Ear" Is New Malady for Workmen

Philadelphia.—A new affliction has found its way among a class of workers in this city. Along with the motor-man's disease known as "trolley foot," caused by continual pounding of the warning gong, and the sailor's "sea legs," comes the "elevator ear," a condition that causes an unsteady gait and distress to some elevator operators.

Physicians attribute the cause to a disarrangement of balance controlled by the labyrinth in the internal ear. The symptoms closely follow the style and build of the elevator. The plunger elevator with long, sustained heave has an entirely different effect from the old-style cable elevator which makes the trip in a series of sudden and disconcerting jerks. The elevator which travels ten or eleven floors without a stop and then halts at each floor produces an effect wholly dissimilar from the others.

The effects are peculiar, ranging from what an old colored elevator operator described as a "mighty misery in my lags" to an aggravated case of sleep-walking. The most common is inability to control direction when walking. In a great many cases these symptoms closely approximate certain stages of locomotor ataxia

PIRATES WILL HAVE THREE NEW PLAYERS.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 22.—Plenty of speed and youth make the Pirates appear on paper as serious contenders for the 1925 National League pennant.

On the results of a late fall trade with the Chicago Cubs will depend mainly what rank Barney Dreyfuss' athletes attain and the off-season guess is that the veteran owner knew what he was doing. Maranville, Cooper and Grimm were sent to the Windy City in a deal that brought Vic Aldridge, Niehaus and Grantham into the local camp.

When the trade was first announced there were loud howls in the local camp, but the feeling now persists that Barney got rid of a trio, who if star performers individually were unable to get along smoothly with Manager Bill McKechnie and other members of the team.

Should Al Niehaus, the recruit first baseman make good around the initial bag, the deal will prove profitable. Eddie Moore, at second, Glenn Wright at short and "Pie" Traynor will complete the infield and give the Pirates one of the best inner defenses in the league. Grantham will probably win an outfield post, with Carey, Cuyler and Bigbee fighting it out for the other two positions. Cuyler was one of the year's finds in 1924 and Carey for years has been the leading base stealer of the senior circuit.

McKechnie is basing his pitching hopes on the return to form of "Jug Handle" Morrison, who was a disappointment last season, and the continued success of Emil Yde, the hurling sensation of 1924. Aldridge is still a powerful pitcher and the veteran "Babe" Adams, Lee Meadows, Kremer and Songer will be available. Two newly acquired recruits, Koupel and Deamrest, had good minor league records.

Earl Smith probably will do most of the catching, with Johnny Gooch and Cliff Knox in reserve.

For three years the Pirates have roared along late in the season and each time have been nosed out of the pennant.

The reason for this has often been laid to an ill-feeling which pervaded the club. Dreyfuss and McKechnie are optimistic this year and feel that a pennant in 1925 is by no means an impossibility.

AUTO OWNERS, ATTENTION!

The president of the United States said to the delegates to the recent National Conference on Street and Highway Safety:—

"If death and disaster that now fall upon innocent people thru the year and over our country as a whole, were concentrated into one calamity, we would shudder at the tremendous catastrophe." "The evil you are combating is so widespread as to be of national concern, and we do well to look at it with a country wide vision."

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who called the conference, stated in his address to the delegates:

"The vast majority of motorists are conscientious and careful and competent. It is the inconsiderate, the careless, the incompetent, who are bringing these dangers—35% to 50% of all accidents are chargeable to them. The conscientious, careful motorists are victims as well as the pedestrian."

Twenty-four (24) states have, at the present time, bills before their legislature, requiring all motorists to deposit securities, or furnish bond, or carry Liability Insurance in an approved insurance company for protection of the public.
